CHRISTMAS HYMN

Sing, Christmas bells!
Say to the earth this is the morn
Whereon our Savior King is born;
Sing to all men—the bond, the free,
The rich, the poor, the high, the low,
The little child that sports in glee,
The aged folk that tottering go—
Proclaim the morn
That Christ is born,
That saveth them and saveth me!

Sing, angel host!
Sing of the stars that God has placed
Above the manger in the east;
Sing of the glories of the night,
The Virgin's sweet humility,
The Babe with kingly robes bedight—
Sing to all men where'er they be
This Christmas morn,
For Christ is born,
That saveth them and saveth me!
—Eugene Field.

GREATNESS OF WILSON INCREASES

Those who have been watching recent proceedings in Washington will agree concerning the righteousness of Woodrow Wilson's advocacy of the cause of the League of Nations and it is an undisputed fact that Woodrow Wilson, the man, is greater today than Woodrow Wilson, the president, ever was. At the ceremonies in honor of the unknown soldier, who died on the field of France and who typified the grief and sorrow which the nation feels for all its dead who gave their lives in a great cause, it was Wilson whom the crowds cheered, and it was Wilson, who, in his frail body typified the sacrifices of war as thoroughly as did the body of the unknown.

Today there are in Washington statesmen from all the great nations considering the problem of disarmament. Two years ago equally great statesmen were considering a similar problem at Versailles, and because partisan politicians would not permit it, nothing came of the deliberations. They wrote a treaty in which the United States refused to have any part, but which the United States was forced to adopt later in its own little treaty. It was the scandal of the age.

The disarmament conference is merely the way politicians selected for doing indirectly that which they could not do directly without paying tribute to the president who came from the opposite political party. But, two years after politicians brought him to the edge of the grave by piling petty annoyances on top of the burdens he had carried through the war he has begun to assume in life the place which he will hold in the hearts of the people long after death. In Washington the crowds cheered him with a degree of reverence which is rarely paid the living. So it will be through the rest of his life and as long as the nation lives. Woodrow Wilson, right or wrong, was the world's strongest character and had it not been for the scheming machinations of Lodge, Borah, Reed and their ilk, his program would have become the strongest program for peace in the history of the world.

That which happened in Washington when Wilson outshined Harding is but a promise of what is to come in the future.—Tonopah Times.

COMMON SENSE FROM DR. MAYO

Dr. Charles Mayo contributes more sanity to the discussion of the treatment accorded to Dr. Lorenz in this country than has come from any other source. He is not interested in the charge that the Austrian surgeon has capitalized his fame and the publicity which came to him unsought. Instead, he recognizes Dr. Lorenz as a great specialist in the non-operative treatment of bone deformities, and sees in the interest his presence has aroused in all classes of people an opportunity for service which the surgeons of the United States should not hesitate to grasp.

"What I do know," he says, "and what every other medical man in the country must realize if he stops to think about it, is that the publicity attending on Dr. Lorenz' work in New York and his projected tour of the country is bringing, or is bound to bring, into the light thousands of cases of crippled children whose infirmities, partly through ignorance or a feeling of hopelessness on the part of their parents, have hitherto been hidden from the doctors and hospitals of their communities."

Dr. Lorenz' methods are of course applicable to but a small proportion of the cases that have come his way, and since he has human limitations he can care for only a few among those who need his special variety of treatment. He must turn away vastly more than he can undertake, and the surplus of patients who have for the first time discovered that they are curable will turn naturally to local surgeons for the fulfillment of the expectations aroused by Dr. Lorenz' arrival. It is not a time for professional jealousy but for professional usefulness.

BANKERS TO HELP EUROPE

American bankers must help re-establish the financial integrity of Europe in the opinion of a prominent western banker.

That is the only way open out of the terrible financial chaos under which world markets and economic conditions are buried.

Following is the broad statesmanlike view of A. L. Mills, president of the First National bank of Portland, a financial authority:

The regeneration of the civilized world rests on the extension of long-time loans by the United States to European countries.

In Great Britain conditions are bad—unemployment is a problem, Germany is under-selling the manufacturers. Steel blames coal, which in turn blames labor. Retailers blame wholesalers, and all these blame the government.

The old fighting bulldog spirit is still in the English nature, however, and with a sound credit on a long-time basis can pay her old obligations, which she has already started to do.

France, in her traditional thrifty manner, is staging a comeback.

Belgium and Italy by the same token will recover their financial standings. Outlaw Russia, uncertain South American nations, staggering China and proud, selfish Japan, have problems to solve that will of necessity involve other nations. Sweden is coming under control of the Socialist, Austria is beyond redemption, a hopeless, bankrupt, and Germany is in a position peculiar to the loser of the war. She has no armament program to keep up.

DIPLOMATIC HUSBAND

The wife of a western congressman is sensitive on the subject of her deficient orthography and her demands for information as to correct spelling sometimes place her peace-loving husband in a delicate position.

One day, as she was writing a letter at her desk, she glanced up to ask:
"Henry, do you spell 'graphic' with one 'f' or two?"
"My dear," was the diplomatic reply, "if you're going to use any you might as well use two."—Harper's Magazine.

WORDS OF WISE MEN

Be slow enough, and quick enough, to be sure.

The test of your worth is if you would be missed from your place.

Absence will strengthen friendship if the last recollections were kindly.

Don't insist on having your own way unless you know where the road ends.

He who intends to do an injury has already done it.

How often things happen by chance which we would not dare to hope for!

True merit, like the pearl in the oyster, is content to be quiet until an opening comes.

The Festive Board at Christmas Time

Since, and before, the times of the Crusaders and the romantic days of the Knights of King Arthur's Court, Christmas has been an occasion for jollity and good eating.

On that occasion people vie with one another to supply the festive board with succulent delicacies, until it groans under the very weight thereof.

Today we have gone one step further—we have capped the climax.

The food is there. The merrymaking is there. But the burden of preparing these Yuletide banquets has been lessened. Electrical appliances—such wonderful things for Christmas gifts—have reduced the burden.

Help your friends to enjoy this emancipation from work in preparing their next Christmas festivities by giving them electrical table appliances. They are ideal in every way—appearances, usefulness, price—as gifts.

The Laws of Economy

An apple bounced off Newton's head and inspired him to evolve the Law of Gravity. The advertisements in this paper can give you—no less forcefully—the inside workings of the Laws of Economy.

As sure as the apple hit Newton, the advertisements have a personal message of economy for you.

Merchants tell you of their bargains through advertisements. Almost every new opportunity is offered through an advertisement.

Practically every unusual buy is advertised.

You save time and trouble by choosing what you want and where to get it from the advertisements instead of hunting all over town.

You save money by keeping up with every opportunity to get full value in buying.
